

THE HILL

January 13 Issue 339
thehillmag.co.uk

Health & happiness

Shape up for 2013 with our fitness experts

Chic design ideas from Kit Kemp

MARIE GUERLAIN

Beauty heiress, artist and humanitarian

Gastro gossip

Alexander Larman serves up the latest foodie news in the Hill

It's party time

If you're still wondering where to go for New Year's Eve, try Kensington Place for their 25th anniversary package. Head chef Dan Loftin has created a three course menu with an amuse bouche and coffee and petit fours, and it costs a comparatively cheap $55 per head.

201 Kensington Church Street
W8 7LX; 020 7727 3184
kensingtonplace-restaurant.co.uk

Ice ice baby

Another ice cream shop, Snowflake Luxury Gelato, has opened in west London, but this one is a bit special. Serving upmarket Italian gelati, the flavours on offer include such delights as crème brulee and super-decadent raspberry ripple, all made fresh with organic milk.

43 Westbourne Grove, Bayswater
W2 4UA, snowflakegelato.co.uk

Cheers!

The latest in the upmarket series of wine bars with charcuterie has just opened on Exhibition Road. Expect a delectable selection of cheese and meat, hip staff and sensibly priced wine by the glass and bottle at Fernandez & Wells South Kensington.

fernandezandwells.com

Welcome back

Following a fire earlier in the year, the much-loved Electric Brasserie on Portobello Road has reopened with a casual American feel as the Electric Diner, specialising in burgers, steaks and all things designed to appeal to the transatlantic carnivore.

191 Portobello Road W11 2ED
electricdiner.com

Schnitzel & strudel

If you felt Kensington always needed an Alpine lodge-cum-restaurant-cum-bar, you're in luck. The newly opened Bodo's Schloss on Kensington High Street offers schnitzel and strudel along with a vast cocktail list.

2a Kensington High Street W8 4RE
bodosschloss.com

Back soon...

The venerable Knightsbridge restaurant Mr Chow is closing for a planned reopening in February next year, when it will celebrate by offering a selection of its signature dishes, including green prawns and squid ink rice noodles.

151 Knightsbridge
SW1X 7PA

